

UNVERIFIED CREATURE DOSSIER

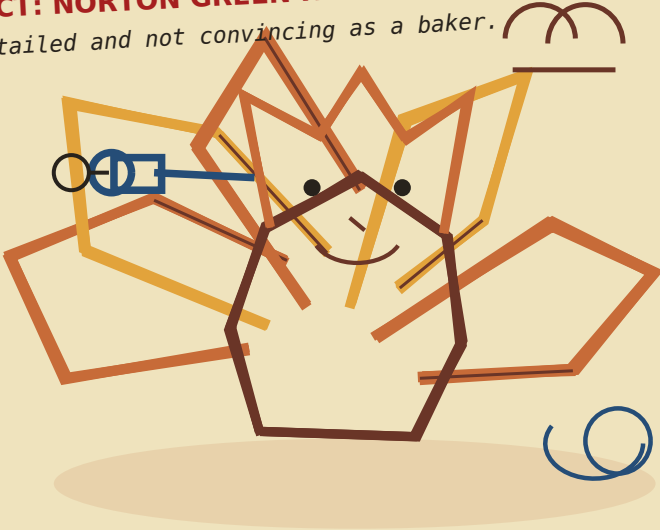

typed after pastry confusion and a suspiciously dramatic eyebrow

FULL CASE RESTRICTED • PASS REQUIRED

ALLEGED SUBJECT: NORTON GREEN KITSUNE

Fox-shaped, five-tailed and not convincing as a baker.

FIVE?!

tail count checked twice, then one tail moved

LOCAL RUMOURS AND ALLEGED SIGHTINGS

THE DOUBLE BAKER

A baker looked across the counter and saw himself buying pastries. Same hat, same moustache, same apron. Five russet tails made the second baker slightly less convincing.

THE GATE VOLCANO

A fox with a spyglass examined an ordinary gate for eleven minutes. A witness says she whispered, 'Volcano entrance'. The gate has declined to comment.

THE THREAD TRAIL

Blue thread appeared from Norton Green to Freshwater, looping around three posts and one startled wheelbarrow. It may be a secret route or very ambitious sewing.

THE MOONLIT CHEF

At Yarmouth, an enormous chef hat served grilled vegetables while five tails passed the plates. Two fishermen insist they were guests, not ingredients.

paw + pastry + wobbly north = secret agent maths

QUESTIONS THAT REMAIN UNANSWEREDSTATUS: ALL OF THEM

- ☐ Did the second baker pay for the pastries?
- ☐ Does the button compass point north, usually, or politely?
- ☐ Can five tails fit through one ordinary cat flap?
- ☐ Who untangles the tails after a long embroidery session?
- ☐ Why examine a gate with a spyglass from six inches away?
- ☐ Most importantly, is any of this even remotely true?
